

LifeGroups: Feel, Know, and Do

We were meant to do life together—and LifeGroups, small groups, and Bible studies help us create community around Jesus. To really be intentional about creating that community, let's ask ourselves three questions:

1. What do we want people to _____?
2. What do we want people to _____?
3. What do we want people to _____?

Leaders

What is one thing you want every leader to KNOW, FEEL, and DO as they lead their small groups?

Know:

Feel:

Do:

What is one practical thing you can do this week to help every small group leader “know, feel, and do” something intentional?

Attendees

What is one thing you want every attendee to KNOW, FEEL, and DO as they join or attend small groups?

Know:

Feel:

Do:

What is one practical thing you can do this week to help every attender “know, feel, and do” something specific about small groups?

Discussion Questions

1. What is our LifeGroups or small groups mission statement or core values? Are they intentional, clear, and known to our team?
2. Are we sharing the vision and mission of our small groups philosophy with our leaders? How often and what channels of communication are we using?
3. What do we want our leaders and attenders to know, feel, or do that’s unique to our ministry?
4. What can we do this week to start communicating to staff, to leaders, and to attenders about our small groups philosophy?
5. What are any negative beliefs that our attenders have about small groups at our church?
6. What is our strategy for talking to people who are already in small groups versus those who aren’t? Is it different?
7. How do attenders get plugged in to a small group—have we made it easy and obvious?
8. Do our leaders feel equipped and connected?
9. How are we as leaders modelling vulnerability, clear communication, growth in Jesus, etc. as we lead others?
10. Who are two small groups leaders or team members I can pastor this week through deep, relational conversations?
11. At Life.Church, three things we want people to do concerning LifeGroups are show up, be present, and engage. What are the things you want your attenders to do?
