

Host Team: Three Questions That Improve Engagement, Part 3

Every week God gives us the opportunity to create an environment where lives are changed forever! To really be intentional about creating that environment, we must ask ourselves three questions:

First, what do I want people to _____?

Second, what do I want people to _____?

Third, what do I want people to _____?

Answering these three questions helps us fulfill God's vision and mission for our churches. And it's always good when going through this exercise to have a clear idea of the vision and mission of your specific ministry.

What is the vision and mission of our church?

What are two or three things you want every leader to DO when they serve on a hosting team?

- 1.
- 2.
- 3.

Every weekend is someone's first weekend. Ask yourself a question next time you are leading: am I enjoying what I'm doing? Your answer is probably the same answer your leaders and attenders would give. Your energy level—low or high—is contagious, so lead with energy!

What is one practical thing you can apply this week to help every leader DO the right action step?

Position yourself closer to life change. When you're positioned close to life change you'll be even more passionate about what God is doing in our churches!

What are two or three things you want every attenders to DO when they're in church and after they leave?

What is one practical thing you can apply this week to help every attender DO the right action step?

Exciting environments lead to inviting environments.

Discussion Questions

1. Track progress: now that you've clarified what you want leaders and attenders to DO, how can you track if you are winning?
2. What gets rewarded gets repeated! What are some behaviors and actions you can reward so they'll become part of your team's culture?
